Dennis McCoy rides virtually every terrain there is, so the DMC bike had to be built for top performance in every situation. Here Dennis tests the Dia-Compe brakes and the new DMC pegs with a tailtap-to-tailtap-to-nosepick-to-icepick-to-tailtap-to-Smith decade. The brakes held fine and the pegs came through with flying colors. The rear axle did get pretty tweaked, though (after a ton of icepicks), but McCoy straightened it back out with the aid of a piece of coping, some elbow grease and a full-face helmet.

WOMAN TROUBLES

Hey Plus!

I recently broke up with my girlfriend because I supposedly rode too much! Whatever! So I wondered, how are the big-name guys' love lives? Names like Hoffman, Miron and Clymer. . .

Tim Hooker
Allegan, MI

Sorry to hear about your ex-girlfriend, Tim. As far as the big guys go, they always seem to find girls who don't mind them spending every waking moment on their bikes. Matt Hoffman has been married for over a year now and since Jay Miron has been pinned with the nickname "Fabio," you know he's getting the hook-ups. We don't know about Clymer. Just keep looking, Tim, and you will eventually find a girl who thinks bikes are as cool as you think they are.
